TET HAMPER

For centuries, the sight of delicate cherry blossoms blooming amidst cool spring breezes has reminded Vietnamese of all generations of more than just the Tet holiday; it also calls to mind prosperity and endless opportunities.

Although the cherry blossom is usually associated with holistic beauty due to its romantic pink colour, “the national flower of the Vietnamese Tet holiday” is also praised for its persistence, exceptional youth and its power to bloom with grace against all odds.

Uplifting the poetic aesthetic to its finest degree, silk-effect paper is the chosen material for this year’s collection. Smooth, elegant and timeless, the mesmerising beauty and sophistication this material adds to the overall design will surely elevate the standard of luxury The Park is known for.

The collection comes in two versions for your selection:

- The Premium box is priced at VND 1,600,000 and includes six small boxes of dried fruits (apricots, dates, pineapple, orange, lotus and black raisins), one glass jar of mixed fruit cookies and one glass jar of spiced cashew nuts.
- The Deluxe box is priced at VND 3,200,000 and includes six small boxes of dried fruits (apricots, dates, pineapple, orange, lotus and black raisins), one glass jar of mixed fruit cookies, one glass jar of spiced cashew nuts and one bottle of Glenmorangie Original whisky.

TET IN SAIGON

Apart from being home to some of the most significant sites in Vietnam, such as the Central Post Office which was designed by Gustave Eiffel, the renowned architect who designed the Statue of Liberty and the Eiffel Tower, and Notre Dame Cathedral of Saigon, Saigon is the ideal place to celebrate during Tet as it offers the best chance to experience this big and important festival.

COME AS EARLY AS YOU CAN

As an old saying goes: “Nothing beats anticipation.” Indeed, watching the city’s transformation before the holiday is truly mesmerising. It usually takes months for city dwellers to celebrate Tet, starting with redecorating houses to picking up festive centerpieces.

And, the beating heart of the feast lies in its flower market – Ho Thi Ky Flower Market in District 10. This maze of flowers houses the flower supply for the whole city, with hundreds of floral varieties coming from Da Lat (a beautiful mountain city near central Vietnam), Mekong Delta (a vast maze of rivers and rice paddies in the southwest of Vietnam), and even from other countries.

It is customary for locals to decorate their homes and businesses with these flowers so this market will be bustling during opening hours.

EXPERIENCE TET LIKE A SAIGONESE

It’s time to pay your loved ones a visit since Tet centres around reunions and family gatherings. During this occasion, you will be able to savour beloved traditional goodies. Banh Chung (Chung cake), square sticky rice cake, or colorful sweet offerings are a few of the typical treats to be found at all houses during this time.

Receiving or gifting red envelopes indicates good luck in Vietnam culture while the lion dance is a cultural identity of the Tet holiday. Both are festive essences and very popular within this period. Tet hampers also comprise a signature offering of the season.

Be amazed as Saigon’s centre quickly changes from a busy hub full of motorbikes honking to a peaceful town with minimal noises! Tet is a rare occasion when you can quietly hear Saigon’s every breath.

In addition, visiting temples plays an integral part of this period for Buddhists and non-Buddhists alike. Temples are full of people praying for the upcoming year, ensconced in mystical smoke from incense.

CULTURAL ESSENCE OF TET

Falling on the same day as Chinese New Year, Tet shares typical similarities to the said festival, though Saigon during Tet is more peaceful and slow-paced. Forget the hustle and bustle of the city, as the Saigonese enjoy the festival with lesser traffic and fresher air amidst a traditional atmosphere.

Nguyen Hue Flower Street is the biggest annual event welcoming the Vietnamese New Year, Tet. It is a new experience each year — from the big picture to the details. Pedestrian Street is transformed into a fantastical flower garden using art, technology and nature to connect people to festive spirits.

In addition, don’t be surprised if you come across Vietnamese in traditional Ao Dai during this time. Tourists may also rent their own for photoshoots on the flower streets — a signature of the festival.

Last but not least, the calligraphy street is vibrant with yellow apricot blossoms decorating dozens of stalls. This place draws visitors to not only ask for words of blessings, but also experience this beautiful Vietnamese tradition. Calligraphy has developed in line with the fast-paced development of society. Yet, its traditional roles remain unchanged.
